Janice Snd Steve Hawkes posted:

Benardo, as we knew him, worked for us for many years, taking care of our horses. When we first met him, he was quick to tell us that he was honest and didn't steal. He was always pleasant and smiling when he came to work, always trying to find extra things to keep him busy. He treated our horses like his own, and noticed little things I missed. I would think he had been working too long, something must be wrong, but he would have finished his work and be sitting in the shade in a chair at the back of the barn watching the horses. He always said he liked it here, and as far as we were concerned was a part of our family. We loved this kind, gentle man and will miss him terribly. Prayers and sympathy to you, his family and close friends. Janice and Steve Hawkes
