There is just so much I can say. Jackie and I met when I was 23 and I am now 40. This beautiful soul touched my life in so many ways and thru so many stages of my life. She showed me how to be positive, passionate, and most importantly STRONG! It says a lot when someone is there to help you walk through life and give their wisdom without wanting anything in return!! Jackie was a true angel and angels don't stay on this earth for too long!! I will love you forever and carry all that you have taught me!! "God is good baby". I'll play your voice in my head until i see you again. ❤️
Your daughter Nina

Jackie moved into the same building I lived in when Alexis was 2 years old. We immediately became special friends and Alexis started to call me Auntie. Jackie always referred to me as her sister. A role I was honored to take. One of my favorite memories, among many, was when I would come home from a singing job around 1 AM and as I turned the corner to our building I would hear Jackie laughing with other neighbors. I would plop myself down on the bench and Jackie and I would talk and laugh until we couldn't keep our eyes open. Jackie would be on the bench many weekend evenings. I think she made sure she was out there knowing that I was coming from work so we could spend that special time together. We both loved our late night chats. When I think of Jackie I always see her smiling. Now she is smiling from up above. Alexis and her family will always be my family and I will ALWAYS be there for them. I received a message from Jackie the other day asking me to keep them close! I plan to! Anyone who knew Jackie was a better person because of her. She was always an inspiration and a reminder that you need to make every day special. I miss my dear dear friend and sister!

Momma J, First and foremost, I love you, and I always will! Without it being said you and Lexy taught me the real meaning of the NY state of mind. The lessons you taught me: resilience and gratitude. Every time I saw you, you thanked God and said God is good baby! People don't take the time to stop and appreciate that moment in time; people don't stop and appreciate their loved ones, I appreciate you. You are a fighter always have been! I'm grateful to have met you, for you cooking for me and making me sleep off that rum... i still can't believe it; such a beautiful soul who never let your physical state stop you from motivating people to be better and want more. Momma J, just know you left a mark on everyone you touched! Rest peacefully and save me a dance. Love you always, Your son!!

I've known Momma Jackie since 2003. It was through my relationship with Alexis that Ms. Jackie became my momma Jackie. She ensured that anytime I was in her presence that I left with more than I came. Whether it was a good meal, a laugh, or one of her infamous hugs. She lives in us all, and I am blessed to know such a gentle soul.
