A.C. was a family man in the truest sense of the word. His family was the center of his life, and everything he did reflected that. Whether through his actions, his time, or his quiet dedication, he made sure those he loved always felt supported and cared for. He was known for his strong work ethic and sense of responsibility. A.C. worked hard, not for praise or recognition, but because providing for his family mattered deeply to him. Through his example, he showed what it meant to be dependable, committed, and steady.

Along with that strength came a great sense of humor. A.C. had a way of bringing lightness into everyday moments, often with a laugh or a simple joke. He reminded those around him to enjoy life - especially with a cup of coffee or a huge bowl of ice cream close by. As a devoted father,
